ALLERTON M. E. CHURCH CEMETERY

Copied July 19, 1917, by Hiram E. Deats.

Allerton (Allertown, Allerville) is in Clinton Township two miles south of Annandale. It can hardly be called a village, but to use a modern phrase, a "community center." Snell's History states (page 538) that Henry Aller gave land for a church site in 1822 and the first building was erected that year. The present edifice was built in 1875. The cemetery is on the east side of the church. About fifty unmarked graves are visible.

SANDY RIDGE CEMETERY

Copied August 2nd, 1917, by Egbert T. Bush and Hiram E. Deats.

This cemetery adjoins the Sandy Ridge Baptist Church, which was constituted October 24, 1818, although the first building was completed some months before, and religious services maintained for some years previously, at least as early as 1812. The first interment was that of Rebecca Doyle, who died April 24, 1819. It is two miles northeast of Stockton, in Delaware Township, which was set off from Amwell Township in 1838.

THE NEWELL BURYING GROUND.

Copied September 3, 1917, by Marian E. Deats and Hiram E. Deats.

This yard, lying between Stanton and Stanton Station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, about five miles north of Flemington, is the property of the Reformed Church of Stanton. It is on the farm taken up by Johannes Nuhl (also written Null), who came from Staten Island by 1730, or perhaps a little earlier. He died in 1762 and with many of his descendants is buried here, though no stones mark the spot. The name Nuhl became Newal and Newel in the second generation and Newell in the third. The earliest dated stone is that of Margaret Waggoner, who died in 1796.

SERGEANTSVILLE M. E. CHURCH CEMETERY

Copied Aug. 10, 1917, by Hiram E. Deats.

There seems to be no record of the establishment of this cemetery. The church was built in 1832 and enlarged in 1867. The graves are at the side and rear of the church.

THE VOORHEES BURYING GROUND

Copied May 21, 1916, by Marian E. Deats and Charles T. Deats.

This yard is in Readington Township about four miles north of Flemington on the road from Packer's Island to the Woods M. E. Church. This lot was conveyed May 12th, 1854, by deed recorded in Volume 110, page 118, by Ralph V. Smith and Sarah M., his wife, to "John B. Sharp and Joseph Carkhuff, together with the descendants of the following named persons whose bodies have been buried in the lot of ground herein conveyed, viz., Joseph Hankinson (the elder), Benjamin Allegar, Sr., John Huffman, Folkard Voorhees, Cornelius Bowman, Adrian Kinney and Jacob Smith." It contains about a quarter of an acre. It has also been known at various times as the Hankinson, Kinney and Smith Burying Ground from the name of former owners of the farm and of the families represented there, according to the temporary prominence of the name.

THE WYCKOFF BURYING GROUND

Copied Sept. 10, 1916, by Marian E. Deats.

This yard is in Readington Township two miles east of Flemington, opposite Rockafellow's Mill. The earliest mention I find of this as a burying ground, is in a deed from the heirs of Phebe Kline, deceased, to Jacob Dilts, dated Feb. 27, 1840 (Vol. 94, page 194), where the "one quarter acre reserved for a burying ground for the neighborhood people" is mentioned. The farm has been owned since 1889 by John P. Kugler. It is stated by old residents that there are at least fifty unmarked or unlettered graves. About twenty may still be seen.

PLEASANT RIDGE CEMETERY

Copied by Hiram E. Deats, October 14, 1922.

This was the site of the "Amwell First Presbyterian Church," now located at Reaville, which was organized before 1737. It is in Raritan Township, on the "Old York Road" which followed a still older Indian path across the state, half way between Ringoes and Reaville. The ground now occupied by the cemetery was taken over by "The Pleasant Ridge Cemetery Association," incorporated Dec. 17, 1912. (Vol. 2, page 88). Much interesting comment on families connected with the church will be found in Rev. John B. Kugler's "The First English Presbyterian Church in Amwell."

MOUNT AIRY CEMETERY.

Copied October 2, 1920, by Dr. W. H. Mitchell and Hiram E. Deats.

This is the church yard of the Amwell Second Presbyterian Church, at Mount Airy, half way between Ringoes and Lambertville, on the Old York Road, and on the western edge of East Amwell Township. It was organized in 1754, being set off from the First Church, on the petition of "people bordering on the Delaware." It served the needs of the inhabitants of the western portion of old Amwell Township, until the Lambertville Church was established in 1821.

LARISON'S CORNER CEMETERY.

Copied 1918 by Mrs. A. B. Simerson, Jr.

This cemetery is the property of the "Amwell United First Presbyterian Church." It is located on the Old York Road, a half mile east of the village of Ringoes, and in East Amwell Township. Originally it was a German Reformed Church, with services in German. The first house is believed to have been built of logs. The second, spoken of as "The Old Stone House," stood on the north side of the present graveyard. The deed for the property is dated Jan. 21, 1749, from James Whittaker to William Kase, Peter Hoffman and William Bellowsfelt, "Trustees to and for the Calvinistical High Dutch Congregation, in the Township of Amwell." The last German pastor was Rev. John Jacob Wack, whose length of service is not definitely known, but approximately 1798-1805, perhaps later. He was the first pastor to conduct services in English. In 1810 this congregation united with the "Amwell First Presbyterian," (now at Reaville), and so continued until 1818, when the union was dissolved, and the present building erected, but this church retained the title of "Amwell United First." Here in 1816 the Hunterdon County Bible Society was organized, and here its centennial anniversary was also observed. As four years have elapsed since the inscriptions were copied, the list was checked in October 1922, and stones erected since were added. A few stones copied in 1918 were not to be found in 1922, but are included here.
